1. Get yourself set up with a couple of tools, you'll need a spanner or a socket set.
2. Set it up where you will want to leave it and make sure that you can either walk around it or reach all four corners.
3. Stand up the legs, spaced so that the table top will hang over the legs, usually about 400mm looks good.
4. Place the legs with the predrilled attachment boards on the outside.
5. Make sure the legs are set parallel to each other, and at right angles to the way you want the table top to sit. You can check this by measuring the diagonal (corner to corner) length, and adjusting the legs so that these are the same in both directions.
6. Place the table tops onto the legs, and be careful to make sure that they over hang the legs by the same amount in all directions
7. Screw in the coach bolts through the attachment board into the tops. And make sure they go ALL the way in.
8. Do it again for the seats.
9. Enjoy.
10. While you are enjoying your awesome new table in the summery summer sun, remember the wood will age, just like your skin would. So you can either keep it looking in original mint condition by rubbing in some oil (we recommend CD50 Extreme), otherwise just leave it and it will grey off nicely.
11. Enjoy some more...
